Thanks so much. I let [REDACTED] know who is planning to attend the meeting from your office and haven't heard anything back from her about that. I expect that means she's fine with it, but if anything changes I'll let you know.

Thanks again,
Alex

If either or both of the other individuals want to reach out to us, that's totally fine and they can call [REDACTED] in the first instance -- her cell is [REDACTED], and they can call her literally anytime (and can leave a message with their contact info if for whatever reason she's not able to pick up when they call).

Separately, we're confirmed for Thursday at 4:30. One heads up, as I mentioned was a possibility, the AUSAs will be me and my colleague [REDACTED]. [REDACTED] is also traveling, so [REDACTED] is available, but please let us know if you think it would be prudent (and/or if [REDACTED] prefers) that we have another female agent join, in case there are topics [REDACTED] would prefer that [REDACTED] and I step out for. No pressure or obligation either way, just wanted to mention it as a possibility.

Please let me know if I'm forgetting anything, and thanks very much.

Oh, also -- [REDACTED] asked for the contact information she can give in case the people she reaches out to want to affirmatively reach out to you or one of your colleagues to arrange a meeting with you.

I wasn't sure if I should give her [REDACTED] contact info or yours. Please let me know and I'll pass that on right away.

Hi [REDACTED],

I just tried to reach you at your desk, but missed you.

[REDACTED] is available to meet this week at 4:30 at our office if that works for you. Also, she plans to make the phone calls we discussed today and tomorrow on her own. She will contact me once she has connected with two individuals she's reaching out to and I will reach out to you in turn.

Happy to discuss anything, if that's helpful.

Thanks,
Alex

Alex,

Just tried calling but missed you – wanted to briefly follow up on our conversation last week to let you know that we certainly don't have any objection to someone from your firm (whether attorney or staff) taking notes in connection with Ms. [REDACTED] conversations to tell the individuals we discussed that our office is interested in speaking with them. I expect we might request a copy of the notes, and, as discussed, whoever is with her would be a potential, theoretical witness, but no issue on our end with any of that.

Separately, if it's possible, could you please ask Ms. [REDACTED] if there is a time next week or the following that we could meet with her? We're hoping to cover all the information we need to in this first set of discussions before June, when I think it will be even more inconvenient for her to meet. I expect the next meeting will address difficult topics, including Giglio subjects and some review of Epstein's conduct with Ms. [REDACTED] in particular; but, I also expect that once we get through those issues, we won't need to meet with her again for at least a little while.

We can generally make ourselves available whenever works on her end, with some combination of our team (e.g., if it's the latter half of next week, will likely be me and our new team member [REDACTED], but let us know if there are any issues with that), and as always can work around her schedule. And happy to come to your office for the final push.

Don't hesitate to give a call if any other info would be helpful, or if any questions or issues, and thanks very much.
